TO PROTECT PRE-SCHOOL CHILDREN FROM CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The Frankfort Women's Club, the teachers of the Frankfort and Frankfort township rural schools, and the Will County Health Department nursing service in cooperation with Dr. W. V. Hedges and Dr. Raymond Hiroshige, are sponsoring a program to protect the pre-school children of this community from diphtheria and small pox.

The physicians have set a special fee for this service, one dollar for each protective dose against diphtheria, one dollar for the Schick test and one dollar for the small pox vaccination.

All children from nine months to fourteen years old are invited to take advantage of this service. It is particularly important that pre-school children be included since they are most susceptible to communicable diseases.

The following services are available: 1. The Schick test, to be given children ten years of age or over and to children who have had diphtheria toxoid. The test will tell whether or not the child needs the two diphtheria toxoid doses. The majority of children over ten years are susceptible to diphtheria, therefore, it is not necessary that they have the test. 2. Two doses of toxoid, three weeks between doses. 3. Vaccination against small pox. The dates are April 11th, April 14th, and May 5 at 11:00 a.m. in the Frankfort school. Request slips will be given to school children to take home to their parents, stating the fee and services available. These slips must be signed by the parents or guardian, together with the age of the child and the school grade.

Tinley Boy Awarded Distinguished Flying Cross

The following letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wallin of Tinley Park during the past week. Bob is located somewhere in New Guinea with the Army Air Corps, and is a crew chief on a C47 Transport plane, the "Jungle Jumper." He is a graduate of Thornton Township high school and enlisted in the Air Corps in June 1942, and went overseas in July, 1943.

Headquarters Fifth Air Force APO 925 February 10, 1944

Dear Mr. Wallin: Recently your son, Sergeant Charles R. Wallin was decorated with the Distinguished Flying Cross. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow American airmen, his country, his home and to you.

He was cited for heroism in flight and exceptional and outstanding accomplishment in the face of great danger above and beyond the line of duty in the Southwest Pacific Area from September 8 to December 3, 1943.

He took part in more than fifty missions dropping supplies and transporting troops over territory that was continually patrolled by enemy fighter aircraft. Often landings were made on fields which were only a few miles from Japanese bases. These operations aided considerably in the recent successes in this theatre.

Almost every hour of every day your son, and the sons of other American fathers, are doing just such things as that here in the Southwest Pacific.

Theirs is a very real and very tangible contribution to victory and to peace.

I would like to tell you how genuinely proud I am to have men such as your son in my command, and how gratified I am to know that young Americans with such courage and resourcefulness are fighting our country's battle against the aggressor nations.

You, Mr. Wallin, have every reason to share that pride and gratification.

Very sincerely,
George C. Kenney, Lieutenant General, Commanding.

MARLEY CHURCH HAS HOLY WEEK PROGRAM

The Lenten worship of the Marley Community church will come to a climax next week with the program for Holy Week. Monday thru Wednesday, there will be half-hour devotional periods in the Brotherhood Room of the church at 8:00 p. m. Good Friday evening the church will gather for the traditional Celebration of the Lord's supper. At that time, the pastor, the Rev. Paul Saunders, will preach a sermon titled: "Not This Man, But Barabas", pointing out the significance of mans rejection of Christ, as it is dramatically symbolized when the mob assembled before Pilate calls for the release of Barabas the robber, rather than our Lord.

The Easter Sunday service has been planned to express our joy and hopes in the Resurrection. The choir will sing the anthem, "I Gave My Life For Thee", by Adams. An offertory, solo, "In the end of the Sabbath" by Speaks, will be sung by Mrs. Helen Saunders. The pastors text will be John 3:16 "God so loved the World".

All the friends of the Marley Church are invited to join with the members in the observance of this solemn week of worship and prayer.

Washington, D. C. LOOKING 'EM OVER

The other day, the White House called WPB's production wizard, Charlie Wilson, to come to see the President. Wilson went, not knowing what it was about and not knowing he was to stay to lunch. When he got there, he found himself lunching with FDR, all alone.

The conversation ranged over everything under the sun, from the problems of business management to Far Eastern trade to Latin American relations to war plant reconversion. When the President asked for Wilson's views on world trade, the former General Electric executive replied:

"Mr. President, I'm a manufacturer, not a merchandiser."

The luncheon lasted more than two hours and, after it was over, Wilson didn't know quite what to make of it, because no very important problems regarding war production had been discussed. When he expressed bewilderment to close friends later, they replied:

"Why, Charlie, you're just a political neophyte! Don't you know what he was doing? Looking you over to see how you would do as second man on the ticket."

Embarrassed, Wilson replied: "People don't seem to know that I'm a Republican."

NOTE—Some politicians figure that the President is now looking for a conservative running mate with a Republican background who would swing votes from business. Undersecretary of State Ed Stettinius is an active bidder for the job. Some conservative groups also figure that, if they can pick the vice president, FDR will resign shortly after the war and they will be in the saddle.

ANZIO ORDANCE

Although the problem of supply on the Anzio beachhead has been emphasized, another factor which the public doesn't realize is the problem of ordnance.

Inside that slender foothold in Italy, there must be not only kitchens and temporary hospitals but, even more important, ammunition dumps and repair shops. This is the job of ordnance. A tank is no good unless it is kept in repair and it is the job of ordnance not only to build tanks, but to train men to go along with them into the field of battle to see that they are kept running.

The same is true of artillery and every other type of weapon. That is why the Anzio beachhead has to maintain machine shops and repair garages, plus a large number of trained ordnance men to keep the weapons at the front operating. All of this has to be done under the terrific hazard of enemy artillery fire, because Nazi big guns are never out of range.

Paradoxical fact is that the man responsible for the good job being done by ordnance is a former navy man. He is hard-hitting Maj. Gen. Levin Campbell, chief of ordnance, who graduated from Annapolis but later joined the coast artillery and has been in the army ever since.

It was Campbell who decentralized the somewhat moribund ordnance department shortly after Pearl Harbor, moving ammunition to St. Louis, automotive vehicles to Detroit, safety and security to Chicago, artillery carriages to Rock Island, Ill., and getting things away from Washington where, as he says, "People are always breathing down your neck."

It was Campbell who cleared the decks for the famous bazooka anti-tank gun. Though he has been criticized for not developing an airplane rocket gun similar to the Germans' weapon, it was really General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the air forces, who failed to take action on the airplane rocket gun when its feasibility was proposed several years ago by Arnold's arch-critic, Major Seversky.

Actually, the ordnance department has to be guided by what the fighting services want. "They never get credit for the new inventions they develop," according to Assistant Secretary of War McCloy, "but if they ever miss one, they catch hell."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

MYSTERY recently surrounded the apartment of the Argentine assistant air attache, Lieut. Ronald J. Rossiter. His rooms at the Marlyn apartments were charred and burned. In the diplomatic corps, the gossip was that dirty work had taken place because of Argentina's anti-U. S. policy. . . . Solution of the mystery: Lieutenant Rossiter went to sleep smoking, had to be rushed to a hospital, and was kept under an oxygen tent to recover from carbon monoxide poisoning.

The warning that more farmers must be drafted comes on the heels of another warning that Italian prisoners no longer can be counted on for farm labor. The status of Italy as a co-belligerent will soon take Italians out of the prisoner category.

Harold Hopper, recently resigned chief of WPB's motion picture section, is urging the American cinema industry to get busy now to prevent motion picture embargoes after the war. Free distribution of movies—one of the best means of American propaganda—should be a plank at the peace table, Hopper urges.

Battle Against Disease Goes on Forever

The war against disease is one in which there is no armistice. It's a big war, too, for the toll of lives from diseases exceeds that of the battlefronts. These pictures take you to medical headquarters of the Children's Aid Society in New York and show you a phase of the battle against disease. Left: Dickie is next. Johnny has already gotten "the works." Center: "No fair." Johnny trusted the nice man and was pricked with a nasty needle. 'Inoculated' Legumes Capture More Nitrogen

Bacteria Living in Soil Often Impotent

Greatest need of farmers in meeting their wartime crop production goals is nitrogen—and their ablest allies in meeting this need are the legume bacteria, capable of taking nitrogen from the air. Inoculation of alfalfa, clovers, soybeans, peas and beans with selected strains of nitrogen-fixing bacteria often enables their legumes to harvest from one to two hundred pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Legume bacteria vary in their ability to aid legumes in taking nitrogen from the air. According to a report by Wayne Umbreit in Wisconsin's latest edition of "What's New in Farm Science"—"on the average, only about one-fourth of the root-nodule bacteria found in the soil are good nitrogen-fixers, one-half are fair and the remaining one-fourth poor. This means that if farmers depend on bacteria in the soil to inoculate their legume seed, under most conditions they are likely to get only from one-fourth to one-half as much nitrogen as they might with good, fresh cultures."

The roots of this red clover plant are full of nodules, showing excellent bacterial action. The clover seed was inoculated before planting.

Since there is no way of determining before seeding whether the soil contains sufficient numbers of the right kind of bacteria—and the average cost of inoculation is no more than ten cents an acre—farmers can well afford to invest in this low-cost form of crop insurance. Either the humus or agar type of inoculant gives satisfactory results. Umbreit points out that root-nodules bacteria are not "at home" in the soil—they are "refugees" there during the periods between legume crops. They may find survival most difficult in acid soils, which makes inoculation almost essential under those conditions. Even then the soil should be limed to assure successful stands of legumes.

Coating of Soft Grease Prevents Rust Damage

"Authorities agree that weather often takes more out of farm machinery than use, and rust has a way of creeping in even under good storage conditions," says W. C. Krueger of Rutgers university.

Tests have shown that crank case and transmission oil will prevent rusting from 7 to 30 days outdoors, Krueger reports. Axle grease and pressure gun grease gave protection from 60 to 90 days; five samples of rust preventive compounds for 276 days and nine samples for 365 days or more.

On the basis of these tests, the best type of rust preventive is the soft grease type which may be brushed on metal surfaces to give protection for 10 months to a year.

High-Bred Eggs Sell

For a Dollar a Piece

Joseph H. Jones, a newspaper man, started a chicken farm near Springfield, Ill., three years ago, and now he is getting $1 apiece—not a dozen—for his eggs. They are for breeding stock.

He paid $60 for a rooster and two hens from Oregon. The rooster was the grandson of Orange Blossom, a hen which laid over 1,000 eggs during her career, and one of the hens was granddaughter of a hen that laid 320 eggs in one year.

Feed Cows on Record

"In one herd of 72 milking cows, there was a saving of more than four tons of feed a month—or 117 pounds of grain a month per cow—when the entire herd was fed grain according to milk production," Dr. George Taylor, Rutgers U. animal husbandry expert, reports. The total pounds of milk produced per month remained about the same and the total fat production was increased slightly, compared with previous months.

Kidneys Must Work Well—

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at nights, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. THE STORY THUS FAR: Lieut. Col. Frank Kurtz, Flying Fortress pilot, tells of that fatal day when the Japs struck in the Philippines. Eight of his men are killed in Old 99 before the Fort could get off the ground. The step by step escape to Australia is described, and how Christmas day is spent by U. S. flyers in Australia. But Kurtz is worrying about two Forts on a mission. Radio report comes from Schaezel saying he'd be in after dark with one body aboard and have ambulance ready. General Brereton lands on Batchelor Field and orders all bombers moved to Java at once. Kurtz reaches well camouflaged field in Java, with load of bombs. Describes social system of the Dutch.

CHAPTER VIII

"Next day we headed out over the Java Sea toward Borneo and, following instructions, found a likely looking river, dropping down to low altitude, and began following it back upcountry, and then, just on schedule, we made out Samarinda Field in the late-afternoon sunlight in spite of its camouflage. And it was the best job we'd ever seen, better than Malang. We'd had practically no time for camouflage at all in the Philippines. But here the Dutch had hewed this field out of the teeming jungle—uprooted the stumps, leveled it off, planted it with grass, and then covered it with wooden sawhorses that would knock the stuffing out of any plane that tried to land through them. Only when you circled the field, out came a crowd of natives on the run—I suppose they were wild men of Borneo the Dutch had tamed. They would remove the sawhorses only from that particular runway you were supposed to use, and the minute your wheels touched the ground they'd start recovering the runway behind you.

"Right away we went to pilots' meeting, where we lined out the mission for Davao Bay.

"The Japs, we knew, seldom flew at night, but we were flying in a V of V's. Jim Connally, George Schaezel, and I made up the third flight, which, I might point out, is the dirty spot, because in those days you could expect most Jap attacks from the rear. Then we started that long climb for altitude—which means safety for the Fortress, a hell of a big and vulnerable target near the ground.

"But while we are still climbing, George Schaezel is lagging. Engine trouble, we later found out. George drops out entirely, which leaves Jim Connally and me alone to handle the dirty spot.

"Presently the formation levels off, and then ahead of us we see an enormous black mass of weather in what is left of the dwindling twilight. It's laid out horizontally right across our path—starting at about 12,000 feet, it seems to go on up forever.

"So what do we do? Our orders are to keep in formation, so we can all hit Davao at the same time, and not go over dispersed at intervals, where the Zeros, rising at the first alarm, can slaughter the stragglers.

"But if we go into this cloud bank, maybe it goes on for miles and we'll lose each other inside of it, and never be able to assemble for the attack.

"The leader decides we'll try to go around it, so, turning, we fly parallel to it. But it seems endless, and after flying for forty-five minutes, we see that in this attempted detour we've wasted precious gasoline—our margin of safety to get to the target and get home is down to almost zero.

"Which means we can't go on.

"We returned to Samarinda, landed, gassed up, and then without any rest or sleep started to take off again for Davao at midnight. This time we were sure we wouldn't miss.

"Again we run into thick fog," went on Frank, "when we go up next night. My co-pilot Colvin and I fly alternately—our eyes smarting and streaming from the strain and staring through the windshield at those formation lights of the planes ahead, not daring to lose sight of them for fear we will then be lost and alone in the night. As dawn breaks I see Broadhurst's Fortress by the number on its tail. It is too late to go on into Davao, just two of us, so we turn and start mournfully back to Samarinda.

"At one o'clock in the morning we again took off on the long flight to the target—between four and five hours. For the first few hours we were lucky. The clouds were well stratified and we flew between two layers of them, so we didn't have to fly both weather and instruments.

"This time we arrive at the previously agreed point where we are to make that 120-degree turn and come directly in on Davao, and as we swing up and over for that sharp bank, I get my only glimpse of the target, which ordinarily the pilot never sees in detail. From where he sits he can only see the sky and the distant horizon ahead. It's the bombardier who can look straight down and a little ahead, who pulls the plane in over that tiny pinpoint to be attacked. But now I'm about to see it for myself—just one look when my wing is cocked high in the air.

"And then I get my only glimpse out of the tilted side window, the city still asleep, the upper Bay of Davao silver in the first dawn light, and then—oh, lovely, lovely sight!—a big boat sitting well offshore surrounded by a protecting circle of destroyers, all of them motionless, not a wisp of smoke coming from a funnel. We've caught them asleep with no steam up, the Japs are snoring—like so many Pearl Harbor brass-hats—this is what we've been waiting for!

"But now comes a change. Over my interphones I hear Stone, bombardier of the lead plane, calling to Combs, who is leading us.

"Do you mind if we change over, sir?" he asks. "I see our real target now."

"We've now roared in almost to our bomb-release line, but Combs agrees. We bank up and change over, now heading apparently for lower Davao Harbor.

"Peering out of the window on the bank, I get one glimpse of it and now understand the reason for the change—the most tremendous concentration of ships I ever saw in my life. Everything, big boys, cruisers of all sizes, transports, submarines, destroyers, gunboats, bunched in there dotting the water so thick we couldn't possibly miss—but now we're on our bomb run, and I'm steadying the plane down to go on the PDI. (Pilot's direction instrument.) To you it's just one of many wavering needles on this big instrument panel. But it's hooked up with the bomb sight in the compartment below. The bombardier has his sensitive fingers on those controls, keeping the target ahead framed in the cross hairs. Every time he moves them a fraction of an inch, the change is registered in that PDI needle on my instrument panel. I can't see the target, of course, but if I follow the needle I can't miss it.

"Now our nerves are tightening up. I glance fleetingly ahead and see Cecil Combs in the lead plane, going over the target. Since we're bringing up the rear, Cecil is about nine miles away, and his big Fortress looks about the size of a wren. That sky ahead is filled with dirty soot-gray ack-ack puffs, making a spotty layer above him. The Japs on the ground have cut their fuses just a little too long to pick off Cecil, but I know that in a very few seconds more I'm going to get a closer view of this ack-ack. I pray Cecil's bombardier won't miss, although he's too far ahead for us to see his bombs leave. Damn it, Stone, now lay 'em down the alley, boy! But that kid won't miss; he's one of the best bombardiers in the business. Now he's laying his train, Pearl Harbor style, on those Japs, who are lying there without steam up—only again I'm raging. Here we are, with a Pearl Harbor setup for a target, but only ten of us, while the Japs hit Hawaii with many scores.

"My navigator has laid aside his tools in the compartment below, and now comes crawling up through the trapdoor to squeeze back through the bomb bays, between the rows of bombs and gas tanks, into the radio compartment, where he'll man a machine gun against Jap fighters.

"There's no interphone talking now except between gunners. We've broken radio silence—the hell with it now. We see them down there and of course they see us up here. Anything we can do to bring the formation in right is okay. So now the earphones crackle with the excited cross talk of machine-gunners, all peering out their windows on the lookout for Zeros.

"I take a quick glance out of the side window to make sure I'm not ahead of Jim. I've got to stay even with him so my gunners can protect his tail and his gunners can protect mine. And I wonder how in hell that first flight has done, but don't dare look up to see if Combs has turned off the target yet. I must stay glued to that needle—my co-pilot is glued to it too, giving me the corrections on my run.

"It must be as carefully timed as a violin duet. My bombardier below there needs the gentle touch of a violinist on his controls and I must follow with equally gentle pressures on the rudder. If he gets excited, and in correcting an error, moves his controls too far, then, following that weaving needle, I'll push a pedal too far and we'll throw the Fortress out of her groove.

"I'm almost praying he won't do this. 'Come on, boy,' I mutter to him, 'don't let it run down your leg, now—don't overcorrect!'

"Now I take the risk of just one glance away from the needle through the windshield to see the second flight just going in on its bomb-release line. The ack-ack fire, which for the first flight was too high, is now breaking below the second flight. That means they'll see they've bracketed us, and next time they make a change in fuses down below—about the time our third flight is going over—they'll have us square.

"Just then I hear a gunner shouting over the interphones:

"Fighters, coming up at nine o'clock! I can't see them yet—wonder where they're coming from. Maybe off a carrier. Then why didn't we make a run on that? Maybe Cecil did, and missed. Maybe my bombardier sees it and we are making our run on it. No, I think, they're probably off the ground. The Japs have probably got the countryside around Davao laced with landing strips by this time—the enterprising little so-and-sos.

(Lay your watch down on the table in front of you. At twelve o'clock the hour hand points straight ahead. At three o'clock it points to the right. At nine o'clock it points to the left.)

"Now my own gunners are talking. They're coming up in a long, slow spiral, like hornets out of a nest—coming up so straight you can even see their bellies. I get the first rumble of the anti-aircraft fire as the ship flutters. A quick glance ahead shows the puffs are right on our level now.

"Then I get mad again. Because it said in our schoolbooks that the Jap anti-aircraft fire couldn't hit anything above 18,000. Here we are, laying it to them from almost twice that altitude, and they're putting it right back up to us.

"Then I get a feeling of exultation. Because down under us and not far ahead now is that Jap Pearl Harbor setup—big ships with stone-cold boilers. Now they must be running frantically around the engine rooms trying to stoke the fires and get steam up, knowing while they're hurrying that it's too late—just as they knew at Pearl Harbor, but all you can do is hurry, so you do it anyway. Well, we've got them where we wanted them, even if there are only ten of us—got them where they had Old 99 just about a month ago.

"Then I jump, for the ship quivers from a burst of fire from our own .50-caliber guns. Then quickly another and another. Zeros coming up, banking to come in and rake us with their fire? But when nothing is said of them over the interphones, I know my boys are only firing little bursts to warm the oil in their guns, making sure the guns won't jam when we are really hit by fighters.

"Suddenly the plane's nose lurches upward and to the left, and hardly have I straightened her out onto even keel when she tries to make another twist. It's the blast from the ack-ack fire—invisible billows of air sent out by each explosion, and now it's as rough as though we were bouncing in a Model T over a Missouri dirt road three days after a rain.

"At my side my co-pilot, who has been looking out through the windshield, hollers: 'Jim's bombs are on their way! I don't dare take my eye from the needle.'

"Just then I get the click from my own bombardier. Our bomb-bay doors are open now—I feel the slight drag on the plane, and with my rudder correct for it, and then that double click on the interphone which means he's telling me: 'Shin level, Frank, please.' And I don't answer except with my feet so firmly but gently on the rudders, giving him that absolutely level bombing platform he has to have if we're to hit the target.

"And at last the precious amber light glows on my instrument panel, which means he's now actually flicking the bombs off, one by one, and I keep my feet so softly on the rudders that they hardly touch, so as not to give the tiniest sideways throw to the bombs. Up in the cockpit we hold our breath. We know down below the bombardier is flicking them off—four 600-pounders at half-second intervals.

"Then as he calls, 'Bombs away!' at that split second we quit working for the Government and begin to work for our wives and families. Because that means the last bomb has left the plane and we can now close the bomb-bay doors, and our objective is now only to get home safely.

SAUL BECOMES A NEW MAN

LESSON TEXT: Acts 9:1-9, 13-19a.
GOLDEN TEXT: If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.—II Corinthians 5:17.

The lives of great men inspire us with an eagerness to make our own lives count for God and for country. Particularly is that true of the life of the apostle Paul, for he combined personal greatness with an absolute surrender and devotion to Christ, which made his life doubly effective.

We recall, however, that this peerless leader for Christ was at first the bitter enemy of everything Christian and we ask, "What changed this man?" The answer is—the redeeming grace of God—but that is the story of our lesson. He became a changed man as he went—

I. From Threatening to Trembling (vv. 1-7).

The enemies of God and of our Christ are often loudmouthed and terror-spreading individuals, who, for a time, strike fear into the hearts of men. Such was Saul of Tarsus, and such are the antichristian leaders of our day. They seem to be so powerful and able to sweep all before them.

But wait! Luther said of God's archenemy, "One little word shall fell him," and it is true. See what happened to Saul. Off on his journey of persecution and destruction, bold and determined, he met Jesus on the Damascus road, and the great threatener is found to be "trembling and astonished" (v. 6).

The Lord is still on His throne, and one day every mouth shall be stopped (Rom. 3:19), and all His enemies shall tremble before Him. Would that they would do it while there is time to repent.

II. From Persecuting to Praying (vv. 2, 8, 9; see also v. 11).

Paul utterly devoted to the rooting out of this hated sect of Christians was on his way with letters authorizing their imprisonment. It was all very official, zealous and marvelous in men's sight, until he met Jesus, and it all blew away.

Ananias, that faithful layman (may his tribe increase!), was called of God to go and speak to the stricken Saul. When he feared to go, God encouraged him (v. 15), for the powerful persecutor had now become a penitent prayerer (v. 11). That's what a face to face meeting with Jesus did for Paul—yes, and will do for any man or woman.

III. From Scoffing to Suffering (vv. 1, 13-16).

Saul doubtless gloried in the breathing out of threatenings and slaughter of which we read in verse 1. He was riding high in the seat of authority and of official approval. It was satisfying to his fleshly pride to make known his dreadful purposes of destruction and imprisonment for these helpless Christians.

Did we say helpless? Oh, no, they had on their side all the power of the Eternal One. He who touches the people of God touches the Lord Himself. Paul thought he was fighting a little sect of Christians, but found that he was fighting the Lord Himself (v. 5).

But now that he had met Jesus and was ready to turn in devotion to His sacred cause, he was to learn what it meant to suffer. Let us note well that suffering for the sake of one's faith may be entirely within the will of God, yes, and for His glory.

IV. From Spiritual Death to Spiritual Life (vv. 17-19).

Men have tried to explain the experience of conversion on the ground of psychology, as a cataclysmic change in the life of an individual who has gone through some great sorrow or trial, but it simply will not go down. There is in real conversion a regeneration which means a completely changed life.

Saul did have a sudden and moving experience on the Damascus road, but it was not just because of a blinding light and a mighty voice. It was a light "from heaven" (v. 4), and the voice of the Lord.

Saul was "filled with the Holy Ghost," and received his sight. He was ready now to be used of the Lord as the greatest missionary evangelist and theologian that the world has ever known.

This change was one which reached down into his inmost being and transformed his beliefs. The Jesus he had hated, now became his all-consuming passion and love. He no longer looked to his works to save him, for now he knew the personal Saviour.

What happened within showed itself in his attitude toward those without. It always does. He now came to love the very people he had hated and persecuted, and turned every bit of his strength and ability into the task of working with them in the spreading of the gospel throughout the world.

Men and women—yes, boys and girls—today need this same change from death to life. Too long have we been trying to polish up the exterior of lives unchanged within.

Indian Chief Had His Own Idea on Contentment

An American gogetter noticed an Indian chief looting at the door of his wigwam west.

"Chief," remonstrated the gogetter, "why don't you get a job?"

"Why?" grunted the chief.

"Well, earn a lot of money."

"Why?" insisted the chief.

"Oh, if you worked and saved your money, you'd have a bank account."

"Why?" again asked the chief.

"For heaven's sake!" shouted the exasperated gogetter. "With a big bank account you could retire, and then you wouldn't have to work any more . . ."

"Not working now," pointed out the chief.

British Must Keep Nose Out of Our Politics

Not satisfied with the aid they have received from the United States which twice has saved the English from being licked to a frazzle, they now have the guts to stick their nose into our political affairs and even dare to tell us how to vote. The American voters resent leaders of other countries telling them how to vote. They feel English leaders have no business to dictate to us as though we were a British colony which many of our crack-brained Americans appear to desire us to be.

Thru British agents in this country part of the British press, and the British propaganda generally, the British government seems to be pretty well committed to support of President Roosevelt for a fourth term. Its defense is that it knows how to gear its war program to his policies and hence its war effort would be upset by a change that would require becoming accustomed to the views and methods of another President.

The British may find, if they persist in this foolhardy course, that they will arouse the resentment of the American people. They tried this scheme often in the early days of the republic. Their meddling in American affairs was one of the main reasons for the War of 1812—the war by which this country both proved its independence and earned the respect which the world reserves for strong countries.

During the Civil war the British sided so openly with the south that their statesmen were accused of plotting to break up the country and make another bid for its reduction to the status of a British colony.

As late as 1888, a British ambassador to this country was sent home for writing a letter to an American voter saying that British interests would be advanced by the reelection of Cleveland. This officious impertinence was especially resented in Indiana, home of the Republican pomine, Benjamin Harrison. Americans look to the British prime minister for authentic reports about the progress of the war and are glad to pay tribute to his leadership but they draw the line at any British attempt to influence the outcome of American elections.

Joliet Undertaker Contender For Office of Coroner

Floyd E. Olson, prominent in civic affairs in Will County the past 20 years, is a principal contender for the office of coroner in Will County. Official announcement of his candidacy has brought about a flurry of activity on his behalf by his many friends.

Mr. Olson came to Joliet from Mount Morris, Ill., and immediately entered into the multiple activities of civic and business life. He has served as a member of the public library board, treasurer of the Advertising Club of Joliet and as a member of the Joliet grade school board.

Mr. Olson is a past president of the John Ericson Republican League of Illinois and recently attended a meeting of that organization. He is 52 years old, is married in Chicago, and resides with his wife, Mable, and daughter, Rogene, at 231 Casseday avenue. He is a graduate of Mount Morris College. His business interest is the Olson Funeral Home at 231 Casseday avenue.

Mr. Olson who has always been actively engaged in Republican party politics, is at present treasurer of the Will County Republican Central Committee and serves as Republican committeeman for the 50th precinct.

His plan of procedure in office includes the complete cooperation with the public of events handled by that office and staff, records available to the press, and a fully informed staff, familiar with procedure and happenings of the office with which it is associated and by whom it is employed.

To the People of Illinois

As the war goes on, military uses of paper and paper products are expanding. The demand for waste paper is steady and urgent.

Many Illinois communities are already taking part in the national campaign for waste paper, yet much still remains to be done. As Governor and as Chairman of the Illinois War Council, I urge all our citizens to help in this timely effort. Once the need for waste paper is fully understood, the response should be open-handed and unanimous. We have done many harder things; I am sure we shall not be lacking in this patriotic service.

NORTHERN ILLINOIS

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY

How this rich farm land fits into the picture of tomorrow

Located in the heart of the most productive agricultural section in America, this area of Northern Illinois is noted for its farming diversification.

Here are thousands of rich dairy farms that supply the great Chicago milk shed. Here are poultry farms that have grown in size and number to help meet America's wartime needs. Here, too, are farmlands where hogs, cattle and sheep thrive... where grain and produce grow in abundance.

In addition to the advantages nature bestowed, this agricultural region has many favorable economic factors. It is the largest packing center and the greatest grain and livestock market in the world. It is the hub of the nation's transportation and a financial capital. Here are electric power plants of vast capacity for extending the benefits of electricity to the farmer and for processing agricultural products.

Yes, Chicago and Northern Illinois is a rich agricultural center, today. And it is tomorrow's Land of Opportunity—not only for the farmer, but for the worker and the industrialist as well.

Are Books Essential?

Today millions are deriving help, inspiration, courage and diversion—from books. Books are saving priceless man hours by making available, to all who can read, all the skills of all the crafts so vital to victory. Books are explaining to a bewildered nation why we fight—how, and where, and whom we fight. Books reveal our friends, unmask our enemies. Books help us to understand our country, our world, the history, the geography, the people, their customs, their ambitions. Books take us where our men are fighting and make them better fighting men. Books give us all that mankind has done and dreamed and planned. Whatever man has accomplished or hopes to accomplish is yours—in books. Are books essential? Try to imagine a democracy at war—without books.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I was just tellin' my brother Fred this morning, Judge...there's never been a time in our lives when we got to live up to that old sayin' 'United we stand, divided we fall' more than we have to today."

"How true that is, Herb. And for the life of me, I can't figure out why, at a time like this, some folks insist on raising a question like prohibition. I can't imagine anything that would tickle our enemies more than to get us folks over here taking sides against each other, arguing about an issue like that. We've got a he-man's job on our hands to win this war and we can't be wasting our minds, our money and our strength fighting about something we tried for nearly 14 years and found couldn't work."

"I say there's a time and a place for everything, and this is no time or place to be doing any fightin' except the kind that's going to win the war."

Former Relief Administrator In Primary Race

M. H. HOLLINGSWORTH is married and resides with his wife and daughter at 354 Whitney Avenue, Joliet.

"Holly," as he is known to his host of friends all over Will and DuPage Counties, was born in Newton, Ind., and was graduated from its grade school and high school. He attended Indiana State College, after which he taught school for three years—the first year, a rural school.

"Holly" came to Joliet as Scout executive for Will and Grundy Counties. During the dreary days early in the depression he managed Illinois Emergency Relief for Will

County. In 1934 he entered the business as assistant vice president of Illinois Securities Company, and in 1938 became the head of his own business through the purchase of Shreve Realty Company, a successful organization in Will County for the last fifty years.

M. H. Hollingsworth will give his district able representation in Springfield. His record instills a confidence that he will be fair to labor, to the farmer, to business, and above all to the taxpayers.

He has served the people well as member and president of the Joliet Township High School Board. He has been honored by his community in naming him president of the Boy Scout Council for Will, Kankakee and Grundy Counties, and in being named to the Board of Directors of the Joliet Y. M. C. A.

Republicans of Will and DuPage Counties can be proud of their representation in Springfield if they will go to the polls on Tuesday, April 11, and vote for M. H. Hollingsworth for Representative in the General Assembly.

Spreitzer Sets Excellent Record

ROBERT L. SPREITZER is a candidate for re-election on his record. Since taking office in 1940, he has given the people of Will County an efficient administration—an administration combining service with economy.

The records of his office show that the general operating expenses of the Recorder's office were reduced by more than $10,000.00 during the first three years of Spreitzer's administration. During that same period, the Recorder's office returned to the Will County Treasurer another $20,000.00 in excess earnings. This sum is greater than the amount turned in by this office during the entire thirteen years preceding Spreitzer's administration.

Since he has been in office, Spreitzer has made technical alterations in his recording processes, in conformity with State statutes, that have made for increased efficiency and savings for his office.

Robert L. Spreitzer has been a resident of Will County since his birth. He was educated in Joliet schools, graduating from high school in 1930, and received his college degree in 1934. Served as Republican committeeman in the ninth precinct of Joliet for four years. He acted as secretary of the the Northwest Side Republican Club for two years. He is a member of the Lions Club and the Moose, and has taken an active interest in the Will County Sportsmen's Club.

Senator Benson's Leadership Is Acknowledged

State Senator Arnold P. Benson, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, rose in the best American tradition to become one of the state leaders in Illinois.

His leadership is acknowledged. Thrice elected to the state senate,

ARNOLD P. BENSON
Senator
Candidate For
Secretary of State

the tall, bespectacled Batavian has a rich background of achievements in affairs of state. His formula for success was simple -- just a dash of common sense.

But way beyond the honors that ish immigrant couple, he began work in factories during school vacations at the age of 12. Even while attending school he had to help balance a meager family budget by peddling a daily newspaper route.

Now are his in the legislative world is the real story of Arnold P. Benson. He came up the hard way. Son of a pious hard-working Swed. No golden-voiced orator is the senator, but there is punch and above all, a common sense in his utterances that carries conviction and makes friends. It is this quality that influenced his selection as minority leader in the 1939 session and as majority leader in the 1941 and 1943 sessions. He has "carried the ball" all the way thru his years.

Powerful of body and mind, the senator has tremendous capacity for absorbing work. He serves on the Illinois War Council, numerous legislative committees, the board of education of his home town and is active in civic, fraternal and patriotic organizations. He is married, and has a son, David, now in first grade in Batavia's school.

His impression on Will County Republican standard bearers who heard him speak at the recent reception Republican rally in the Elks club was a strong one. They like him and they are letting the world know it.

If it was a hardship for him to toil while other boys played, young Benson did not complain. But out of the knowledge that he was a breadwinner for the family developed an independence of thought that couldn't be denied expression for leadership in later years.

At the outset there was no indication that young Benson would be one of the young men most likely to succeed from Batavia. After graduation from high school, he worked as a clerk for the Challenge Company in Batavia. A year later found him in Chicago where he worked and studied. After the first World War broke out he got into it. And when it was over he went to work at the first job obtainable... the Sperry company in North Aurora where he was a machine operator.

There he got his first-hand knowledge of humanity's problems, absorbing his interest, as had all other phases of life which he had seen.

11th Cong. District Voters Interested In Delegate Race

Thruout the Eleventh Congressional District the anti-Willkie feeling is perhaps the greatest in any section of the country. C. M. Burgess and Win Knoch in their campaign that comprises the counties of Kane, DuPage, McHenry and Will have stressed the singular importance of why they are unquestionably opposed to Wendell Willkie as the Republican Party Nominee.

Delegates and alternates to the Republican National Nominating Convention in Chicago on June 26 will be responsible to the people of the United States and particularly to the people of the Eleventh Congressional District for the selection of a Republican candidate for President, a candidate for vice-president and the platform of the Republican Party on which these nominees will campaign.

These men are also campaigning for constitutional republicanism, a stronger and more rigid recognition of constitutional safeguards for American liberties; in other words, a return to "real Republicanism."

The people of the Eleventh Congressional District have an important obligation to perform on April 11th and that is the opportunity, by voting for delegates to take part in the selection of a Republican president of the United States. The American people must help to keep this country free, not only for themselves, but for those men and women who are fighting thruout the world to keep us free from foreign aggressors. These same men and women expect to come back to the United States and have a free country, one which is fundamentally as sound as when they went away. It is your duty to them to vote on April 11 for the men whom you think will best interpret your views and who will do the job as you would like to have it done.

Low Down on Sam Bailey Candidate For Will Co. Auditor

Samuel C. Bailey, father of two young patriots serving in this global conflict, one in the WAVES and one in the Ferrying and Transport Command overseas, expresses his desire to serve the home front as Will County Auditor.

Of a family long active in the Will County picture of growth and progress, Samuel Bailey is the son of the late Bernard "Barney" Bailey who until his death was superintendent of the Phoenix Horse Shoe Works.

Now a third generation of the Bailey family is active in protection of those rights of a country, a state, a county, and a party to whom it has long been devoted.... the Republican party of the United States.

Miss Helen Bailey, daughter of the candidate who resides at 1268 N. Hickory St., Joliet, is a WAVE. George Bailey, a brother of Helen, serves his country as a pilot with the Ferrying and Transport Command overseas. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey have two more children and all have been active in county activities.

Educated in the public schools of Joliet, the Joliet Township High School and the Metropolitan Business College where, at the latter institution, Mr. Bailey specialized in bookkeeping and business courses, he became associated with the Phoenix Horse Shoe Works after completion of education. Later he was appointed to the staff of the County Clerk's office, a position he now occupies.

He became vitally interested in courthouse routine and procedure, studying the laws governing the various offices including the one in which he serves.

A knowledge of their requirements for efficient operation has been a guiding rule in his conduct in office and one which he now desires to apply to the office of Will County Auditor.

He, therefore, asks the vote of Will County citizenry on April 11... the primary election. His name is found on the Republican ballot and under that banner his one pledge to the voters is this "I shall conduct the office I now seek in a strictly business-like and efficient manner which will reflect credit to the office, the party, the voters and to myself and my family."

GEORGE R. PERRINERepublican State Committeeman
Eleventh Congressional District

A Personal Word

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of Republican State Central Committeeman from this, the Eleventh Congressional District (Kane, DuPage, Will and McHenry counties).

As Republicans already know, the state committee has twice honored me by electing me committee treasurer. Likewise all good Republicans know I have discharged the duties of committeeman faithfully and well.

In my home community I have long served as president of the Aurora Public Health Association, the agency of free nursing for the needy sick. I am likewise active in many other community and public affairs. Some of these are: President, Hinckley State Bank; director, Aurora National Bank; member of the Illinois bar for the past 10 years.

My loyalty and adherence to Republican party principles are an old story, sprung from roots which grow deep into the soil of this district from pioneers who braved the prairie wilderness a hundred years and more ago to carve out a living from the land.

If you believe I have served the Republican party honestly and conscientiously, I shall ask you to

The V-Eighters increased their lead to three games as they rolled at a terrific clip sweeping the series with the Smokers. They set up a new team high series for the season without the aid of Neithammer who was absent. The V-Eighters had their motors primed for the stretch drive to the finish line with the Oilers having an outside chance to overtake them.

Both the Oilers and Paperhangers are slipping backward as they dropped two games apiece. The revived Bankers taking the Oilers and last season's champs, the Robins putting on a stretch drive defeated the Paperhangers.

The League standing now shows with one night remaining to bowl that the V-Eighters are out in front by three games, The Oilers, Robins and Paperhangers are tied for second place with games won and the Bankers are entrenched in fifth position with the Smokers as cellar champs.

Looks like a battle royal the final night between the three teams tied for second place. The odds favor the Paperhangers who roll the Smokers while the Oilers battle the Robins.

J. Harold Downey Is In Race For Assembly

Feeling that his 23 years of interpreting the law has prepared him to help write postwar legislation, Attorney J. Harold Downey entered the race for state representative on the Democratic ticket in this district.

Some confusion exists over the effect of voting in the Democratic primary, according to Attorney J. Harold Downey, candidate for state representative. Since only one Democrat and two Republicans will be nominated, the nomination of a candidate insures his election in the fall.

Mr. Downey was born in this district, the son of the late John W. Downey, recognized as one of the ablest attorneys at the Will County bar. It was from his father that Attorney Downey also inherited his party affiliation, since the elder Downey was an ardent Democrat.

Mr. Downey has pledged himself to any legislation providing benefits for servicemen. He has served as advisory counsel and associate member of the Will County registrants since the outbreak of World War II. He also acted as supervising attorney for HOLC. He is active in the civic and social affairs of his native city of Joliet and now holds the office of judge advocate in the Knights of Columbus.

Attorney Downey attended the Joliet Parochial schools and was graduated from Joliet Township high school. He received his law degree from the University of Valparaiso.

He resides in Joliet with his wife and four children and practices law there with offices in the Morris building.

A VETERAN non-combatant, looking on from the sidelines for many years, brings in another argument.

Here is the point he makes—"Who have been the smartest men you've known in sport—not only in their professions, but also outside of their professions? We all know there have been many smart ballplayers, fighters, etc., who were shrewd and canny enough in their own games, but who were dumber than an iron ox in every other phase of existence. What about their own games and their outside abilities?"

This is an interesting angle. Being a glutton for punishment as well as an end-of-the-limb inhabitant, we'll take a chance.

Bobby Jones

No. 1. Boxing. Our nomination is James J. Corbett, a great heavyweight and the best of all boxers.

Not only a smart ring man, but a first-class actor, a brilliant talker and a dapper, a striking personality who could match a quick wit on the stage with such a comedian as Frank Tinney.

In this outside respect, including the ring, Gene Tunney ranks second. Tunney actually knew his Shakespeare, his Shelley and his Keats, but he wasn't a James J. Corbett.

No. 2. Baseball. Christy Mathewson. Matty was not only an able college graduate but certainly one of the smartest pitchers that ever lived. Probably the smartest. I dropped in with Big Six at the Pittsburgh Athletic club many years ago and saw him play ten well-known chess players, moving from board to board. Matty won all ten games. Matty was a scholar with a brilliant mind. He was known as Old Percentage. Moe Berg knew more languages and possibly was a trifle closer to literature, but Matty gets the top vote.

Bobby Jones a Lawyer

No. 3. Golf. We must offer you Maj. Robert T. Jones of the army air force.

Bobby was something more than one of the smartest golfers that ever entered a championship, where his judgment was usually beyond any criticism.

He was also something more than a leading graduate of Georgia Tech and a post-graduate from Harvard, where he took a two-year course in one year and finished near the head of his class. He was also a smart lawyer and a smart business man on the side. He has one of the best minds I've run across. I don't believe this selection can be challenged.

No. 4. Football. This is where we move into a number of diverging trails. Football has been packed with smartness.

There are such men to consider as Knute Rockne, Percy Haughton, Lou Little, Bob Zuppke, Dan McGugin, Dick Harlow—on and on.

My vote goes to Rockne—a smart football player—one of the smartest of all coaches—an able after-dinner speaker—a master psychologist and one of the most interesting people I've ever known, no matter what the company.

Bob Zuppke as coach, speaker, artist and philosopher wasn't far behind.

Tilden an Able Writer

No. 5. Tennis. The vote goes to Bill Tilden. Big Bill was the smartest of all tennis players. In addition to that he was one of the true masters of English as a writer. Many of his articles were used for text purposes in many colleges.

No. 6. Racing. My vote here would go to Earl Sande. Sande was one of the greatest jockeys of all time. He has been a high-class trainer. He has also been able to make a living as a singer with an excellent voice. Extremely intelligent, he is quiet, modest and capable in whatever he undertakes.

No. 7. Track. Jack Lovelock—New Zealand. Lovelock was one of the greatest milers of all time. I saw him beat Glenn Cunningham in the Princeton meet and later run away from Cunningham in the Berlin Olympics where he set a new 1500-meter record. On the side he was a brilliant scholar and one of the best doctors of his day. He is now serving in Scotland and England in this capacity on the war side.

This is enough, at least, to start a few arguments for those who happen to be in a debating mood. They are not final pronouncements. They are merely personal opinions, picked up along a 40-year highway.

What Sort of Baseball?

What sort of baseball will we have? I don't think this is important. It is far more important that most of the stars and most of the regulars are now in the service.

Would anyone want a baseball season where we had such famous baseball names as Bob Feller, Joe Mize, Hank Greenberg, Johnny Mize, Johnny Beazley, Ted Williams, Phil Rizzuto, Charley Keller, Walker Cooper, etc., etc., ready to report in a baseball uniform? I don't think so.

A COUPLE of weeks ago the Cincinnati Reds were looked upon as the team to beat in the National league. Since then several things have happened and the Reds have been forced to move back in favor of the Chicago Cubs.

But that shouldn't bother the Reds. It's a long time until the season gets under way, and a good many changes may come to pass before the official opening. Picking the winners of the major leagues is a never-ending process this year. It's eight times as much work as it was in previous seasons. Instead of picking a team in each league and being stuck with the selections at season's end, you can now pick the eight teams in each league. Eventually you'll strike the right combination. The only precaution is not to pick more than one team in the same league on the same day. That tends to confuse your listeners.

And you must always add "as of today." Your choice of April 1 might lose some extremely valuable men overnight. On April 2 you can choose another team.

The Cubs on Paper

Back to the Cubs vs. the Reds. The Chicago club stacks up on paper as an excellent team even for a normal year. They have a sizeable list of experienced men and, fortunately enough, the list includes an entire infield. They have accumulated a good representation from the minor league. In fact, some of the new boys are so good that the veterans are going to have a tough time holding their jobs.

The Cub outfield may be a thing of beauty. The club has three candidates, each of whom batted in 100 or more runs last year. Veteran Bill Nicholson knocked in 128 runs for the Cubs, Andy Pafko drove home 118 for Los Angeles while hitting .353, and Ed Sauer drove in an even 100 as he hit .368 for Nashville.

Even though Pafko and Sauer are rookies, their performances were proof of their ability. They weren't playing against sand-lot teams. Too, the Cubs still have veterans Peanuts Lowrey and Ival Goodman, not to mention John Ostrowski, who topped the Coast league in home runs.

In the infield Manager Jimmy Wilson will have (with possibilities of changes) Ed Stanky, Stan Hack, Leonard Merullo and Phil Cavarretta, all more or less 1943 regulars.

The big question is in the pitching and catching staffs. Right now the Cubs have Claude Passeau, Lon Warneke, Paul Derringer and Paul Erickson. Rookies Jodie Phipps from Los Angeles, Dale Anderson of Nashville and Jim Lynn of Los Angeles should help out to a considerable extent.

The Catchers

Micky Kreitner of Nashville and Billy Holm of Los Angeles may never be the best catchers in the world, but the Cubs can feel lucky they're on the roster.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds is optimistic concerning baseball in general. His optimism halts there. The Reds' chief recently told reporters "Things are just so uncertain now I can't even tell you who will be playing (for the Reds). Bucky Walters and Ray Mueller are sure to be back. But one pitcher and one catcher doesn't make a team."

McKechnie likely was thinking of Johnny Vander Meer and Lonnie Frey, both of whom will be missing at the opening gun. Ed Miller, his shortstop, also is in 1-A and may be called before the season opens. "So is Elmer Riddle," McKechnie adds sadly.

In discussing the National league season in general, McKechnie puts on his rose-colored glasses. In that regard he differs from several other major league managers. He says: "This should be one of the best. I believe the most interesting, seasons I've ever seen. On paper, at least, the teams are more evenly matched than before."

"And then we have these youngsters that several teams are bringing up who will compete with the veterans, like the Waner boys. It should be a good race, one of the best."

Notes of a

New Yorker

The Wireless: Radio historian Harriet Van Horne quotes a medico as saying that listeners to the daytime soap operas expose themselves to "increased blood pressure, nocturnal frights, vasomotor instability, vertigo, gastro-intestinal disturbances, profuse perspiration, tremors and a slight touch of tachycardia."

Of course, that doctor is talking about only those who LIKE the programs. . . . Marion Coveridge, the minor (she's 14), packs a wallop with her ballads Sunday ayems via NBC. . . . Too many radio jesters really believe the studio audiences' howls as legitimate. The result is that the comics are getting careless. What brings big laughter in studios often brings yawns in the parlors.

The Love Letter of the Week: From Quentin Reynolds' book, "The Curtain Rises": "Most of what I wrote in the diary is nothing but gossip. Still I suppose if a thousand years from now someone were to dig up the Winchell columns of the 1920s, he would get a pretty clear picture of life here during those hectic days. You cannot dismiss gossip columns by saying they discuss only trivial things. To a great extent they reflect the age in which we live."

Editorial Dept' Noveltie: It happened in the city room of one of the Big Town gazettes. . . . Two of the boys were back to say hello. . . . One (who has never been out of the country) wore the army oak leaf. . . . The other wore the gray-green of the marines, with a couple of hard-won stripes. . . . Tipped and blustering, the Major called upon the Marine to salute. . . . The kid responded quickly. . . . After all, he had been only a copy-boy; the Major had been an editor, if you please. . . . It was a tight, tense moment. . . . A real editor looked up from his work with studied puzzlement. . . . "Tell me," he said in clipped, quiet, carrying syllables, "which one of you was it who killed six Japs on Guadalcanal?" . . . The Major quadded out the door. . . . The kid was too modest.

Midtown Vignette: This is one of those shawt-shawts that caress the eyes and ears. . . . He is a very young member of a Fortress crew now being rehabilitated after service among the flak in Europe. . . . He has most of the campaign ribbons, but no medals for outstanding heroism. . . . Two of his buddies have several. . . . The lads had a few hours leave last night and decided to go to one of the night spots with their buddy and his bride. . . . And because he had no silver star or other medals—the other two didn't wear theirs.

The Magic Lanterns: Hollywood, which has too often pictured a kick in a Jap's pants as the payoff for Pearl Harbor, gets down to cases in "The Purple Heart." Here's a flicker that brings the film colony up to date. Its story gets inside you and twists and burns with its report on the Sneakiness savagery. The tale is told not with a ladle, but with a typewriter of cold steel. Dana Andrews, Sam Levene and Richard Conte are superb as the captured fliers. . . . Nora Bayes gets her big song and danced in "Shine on Harvest Moon," a rich load of y old time nostalgia. Its typical of the them-was-the-dayish musicals, and you can't imagine anyone not reveling in some of the memories of the big town before it went soft on crepes suzettes and laced shoes.

In the forthcoming film of Nora Bayes' life—"Shine on Harvest Moon," they omit this incident. . . . Nora once wired E. F. Albee, the vaudeville magnate: "Beginning next week my salary must be $10,000 a week." . . . Albee replied: "Your salary will remain $1,000 per week." . . . Nora opened as scheduled, but after singing eight bars of "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" she stopped the music and told the audience: "That's $1,000 worth of my act"—and walked off.

Then there's the one about the playwright who was called upon to make a curtain speech. . . . He rambled on and on, with words going round and round looking for an idea. . . . When he came to the phrase: "I am speaking for the benefit of posterity"—a heckler in the audience drove him from the stage with the squeal: "Yes, and if you aren't quick about it, they'll be along to hear you."

No colyum on stage stories would be complete without one about John Barrymore, whose pungent wordage packed more of a wallop than most critics. . . . During a rehearsal with an uppy actress, Barrymore made some harsh remarks about her work. . . . The actress drew herself up to her full height and snapped: "I want you to remember that I am a lady!"

Barrymore made a long, sweeping bow and came up with the rapier reply: "Madam, I shall respect your secret!"

WHEN INFLATION IS HATCHED

THE 60 million workers employed in the mines, factories, forests and transportation systems of America received last year more than three-fifths of the national income of 140 billion dollars. The other less than two-fifths went to the farmers; the merchants; city, county, state and federal government officials, including police and teachers; lawyers, doctors, preachers and other professional classes; business management, including sales, and as interest compensation to those who provided the money for the plants and tools that 60 million workers might have jobs.

Labor keeps up a continuous demand for a larger cut of the national melon, and a smaller part in the tax payment.

Not alone is the average hourly wage of labor greater than ever before known in this or any other country, but hour and wage scales have been so arranged as to make the weekly pay check out of proportion to the hourly wage.

The President prescribed the "Little Steel formula" as a wage measure based on a 40-hour week. To meet the demands of labor, and hoodwink the public, eight more working hours were provided for, not at the established hourly wage, but at 1½ times that wage.

It meant that the worker, working 40 hours each week at an hourly wage of $1.25, received $50 for his regular 40 hours, on top of which his pay check for the week included $11.80 for the extra eight hours, a total of $61.80 for the same number of hours he had been working until the government decreed the 40-hour week.

There are less than 30 million families in the United States, and the 60 million workers could represent, at the most, not more than 20 million families. That means an average of three workers per family, with an average weekly earning per family of better than $180 per week. Such figures are approximately correct in plants working on government contracts and in the mines.

It is such conditions that have produced the wild orgy of spending, out of which has been hatched the threat of inflation.

If sympathy is due it should go to the farmers, the white collar workers and especially to those who saved and invested their savings in the plants and tools of American industry and transportation that those savings might provide for their declining years. They are more entitled to consideration than the class demanding an ever-increasing income with which to meet the price demands of that inflation their spending has created.

WE ARE A NATION OF 'FUNDAMENTALISTS'

IF I WERE SEEKING a name for a new political party, a name that would express the desires of a large majority of American voters, I would use the word "fundamentalist" as that name. We are not radicals or conservatives, liberals or standpatters. We do not want to make America over. We do want the America we had, the America our fathers and grandfathers had. We want the methods, the form and kind of government, under which we grew from practically nothing to the strongest, most prosperous nation in the world, with the highest living standards any people have ever enjoyed. We have sacrificed progress in a trial and error effort at finding ways to more progress. We, as a people, are not interested in any of the modern day isms. We want to get back to those fundamentals, as expressed in our Constitution and our bill of rights, laid down for us by the founding fathers. The party that expresses just that as its platform and purpose will appeal to the great majority of the American voters. Yes, most of us are fundamentalists.

HAVE YOU A FAVORITE 'WHIPPING BOY'?

AN ACQUAINTANCE of many years was rated as, and was, a successful executive. His friends marveled at the even tempered disposition that enabled him to operate an extensive plant with no evidence of friction in any department. The secret was a "whipping boy." He "blew off" when necessary, at the expense of one employee who was kept largely for that purpose. That employee knew his job depended on his accepting abuse when anything in any department went wrong. To him it was all a part of the day's work. If we but analyze ourselves we will find that each of us has a whipping boy.

SHOULD THE COW BARN leak and you repair the roof to protect the calf, you can deduct the cost from your taxable income. Should the roof of the baby's bedroom leak and you repair it to protect the child, that expense cannot be deducted. So says the treasury department.

ANOTHER HUNDRED BILLION added to what we have spent sums up to more than we will want to pay. Just the same war bonds are the best and safest investment you can find for your dollars.

Making a Slip Cover For Favorite Chair

THERE are two ways to make a slip cover. One is to pin and then cut the actual material right on the chair; the other is to cut muslin or old sheets on the chair and then use the pieces for a pattern.

Whichever method is used, fit and pin the pieces smoothly but do not stretch them. Allow ½-inch seams and a 4-inch tuck-in around a spring seat. Notch the seams to show how they should be joined. When fitting a pattern, mark each piece with an arrow, as shown, to indicate which way the grain of the goods should run.

At the bottom of the sketch the pattern pieces are shown pinned to the material. If figured fabric is used, be sure to place the pattern pieces so that the design is centered for the back and the seat of the chair.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Window screens, rust-proof and flexible, that will roll up like shades are among the rubber products promised for post-war service by B. F. Goodrich technicians.

In 1942, automobile graveyards wrecked 2,043,000 cars. It is estimated that 1,196,000 cars will have ceased their rubber-wearing activities in 1943 through the medium of the wrecker.

Don't forget the spare in rotating tires, for rubber not in service ages more rapidly than when in actual use.

At least 16 Latin-American countries have soil and climatic conditions suitable for the growing of rubber.

12¢ WORTH OF (PER ACRE)
INOCULATION
MADE THIS DIFFERENCE IN Soybeans

It cost only 12¢ an acre and took only a few minutes to make the difference in the test plots shown above. Inoculation of seed with NITRAGIN not only boosts yields of soybeans, alfalfa, clovers and other legumes, it also increases protein content, and helps build soil fertility—adding as much as 50 to 150 lbs. of nitrogen to the acre. It pays to inoculate every planting of soybeans, and other legumes regardless of previous cropping. NITRAGIN is the most widely used inoculant. Get it from your seedsmen . . . in the yellow can.
